

- Karen Lightman is Executive Director of Safety21 University Transportation Center and Metro21: Smart Cities Institute at Carnegie Mellon University
- Internationally recognized leader in building and supporting communities based on emerging technologies
- Expertise with commercializing academic research, building industry-based consortiums and strategically leading teams to explore market-based opportunities
- BA from the University of Vermont and MS from CMU's Heinz College
- Proud mom to two adult children, Karen lives in Pittsburgh with her husband and dog