

Steve Wray serves as Pittsburgh's Director of Economic Development, advancing business growth and the city's innovation economy. He previously led CMU's Block Center for Technology and Society, built Econsult Solutions' "Future of Cities" practice, and headed the Economy League of Greater Philadelphia. He holds degrees from Carnegie Mellon and Duke.

